

Grandparents' Cheat Sheet for Staying in the Game

Selected by Abby Stokes, author of "IS THIS THING ON?"

From documenting memories to scheduling quality time, the Internet offers an endless array of options for staying in touch and enjoying time with your grandchildren and family members. If you haven't ventured into the land of Skype or Facebook, give it a go. It's where the kids are, and you should be there too!

Make a Date

- Schedule a regular date to connect in real-time online, whether it is a Skype video call or instant messaging (Ch. 19 – "Join the Conversation," p. 265).
- Be prepared with open-ended questions that promote conversation, such as: "Why is she your favorite teacher?"; "If there is something you could change about yesterday, what would it be?"; or "What is a perfect day for you?"

Create a Ritual

- Touch base with computer questions on "Tech Tuesday."
- "Website Wednesday" is when you e-mail the link of a website that you enjoy and think others would like, too (Ch. 17 – "Advanced E-mail," p. 233). For suggestions to get you started, more than 200 websites are listed on pages 416–417.
- Schedule time to play a game online for "Fun Fridays," alternating who chooses the game. Don't forget to play the old favorites—checkers, hangman, chess, and Go Fish—and be open to their suggestions for new games as well.

Chronicle Family History

- The Internet is a great tool for swapping memories and sharing family history with younger generations. Have your grandkids share a recent family photo online—either as an e-mail attachment or on Facebook. You, in turn, share an old family photo they may have never seen before (Ch. 18 – "Picture This," p. 251). You should each write a few sentences describing the photo. It can all be a great conversation starter for your next Skype session.
- Work together to design a family website for everyone to share photos and blog postings— include a family calendar with birthdays, recitals, school vacations, and more.
- Collaborate to create a questionnaire for each family member to answer and share. Include questions such as: "What's your favorite food?"; "What were you doing the day I was born?"; and "Did you have a pet when you were little?"

Send a Surprise

- Shop online and send all the supplies necessary for a party (hats, balloons, etc.) when there is no event on the calendar. Just for fun! (Ch. 22 – "Shop Till You Drop," p. 339)
- Video yourself reading their favorite story.
- Send an e-card for no occasion at all.

Go Retro

- Some traditions are irreplaceable! Send a postcard or a box of homemade cookies via snail mail.

For more information, please contact Maggie Gleason at 212-614-5634 or maggie@workman.com.

"IS THIS THING ON?" A Computer Handbook for Late Bloomers, Technophobes, and the Kicking & Screaming
By Abby Stokes

Workman Publishing | ISBN: 978-0-7611-6882-9 | $16.95